at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington. Almost every known breed of dog is represented in the entries, which reach the record total of 5,766.—(Daily Mirror photographs.)

BARRISTER AND "ROSE-GIRL."

Husband's Story in His Restitution Suit.

HUNT FOR CHILD.

Tale of Wife's Protest When He Kissed Baby.

Stories of his searches for his wife and child were told in evidence yesterday, before Mr. Justice Hill, by Major Ralph Frederic Bury, a barrister, practising at the Parliamentary Bar, who is petitioning for restitution of conjugal rights.

His wife, Mrs. Violet Esme Bury, pleads that she has just cause for leaving her husband, who is twenty-one years her senior.

Major Bury, who stated that his wife's income is about £3,200 a year, complained that he has only had fleeting glimpses of his child.

Yesterday he was questioned about his use of the name "Lancelot Tremaine" and his acquaintance with a Miss Jenny Earle.

"LANCLOTT TREMAINE."

Name Husband Used as Safeguard for His Correspondence.

Major Bury, continuing his evidence yesterday, said his net income was £1,600 a year. He denied his wife's allegation that before the marriage he represented that his income was £5,000 a year, but he did point out that their gross incomes would amount to about £6,000 a year.

Sir Ernest Pollock, K.C.: Your wife pleads that your behaviour during your married life has ruined her health, and that you suffered from a constant inability to tell the truth. Do you agree with that?—I most emphatically deny it.

Major Bury also denied his wife's statement that after the honeymoon she was treated as a complete nonentity and that his brother was the mistress of the house. His mother only remained a month after the marriage.

With reference to his wife's complaint that she was "socially isolated," Major Bury remarked: "I cannot see how anybody could be socially isolated when they are hunting three days a week."

Before his wife had her child his presence seemed to irritate her, and in June, 1921, she disappeared for seven weeks.

He learned that the child was born in a nursing home in London. He did not know where it was, and hunted about for weeks to find it.

When he visited his wife, Major Bury said, he went to the cot and kissed the baby. His wife exclaimed: "Oh, that you should touch it!" She broke down and had a fit of hysteria.

Major Bury said that he had suspected Mrs. Bury's cousin of having a bad influence on her, but he was entirely wrong, and had apologised to the cousin for his error.

"ROSE DAY" INCIDENT.

Mr. Ernest Charles, K.C. (for the wife): Have you ever passed under the name of Lancelot Tremaine?—No.

Do you know a girl called Jenny Earle?—Yes. And represented yourself to her as Lancelot Tremaine?—No. I told her I was Lancelot Tremaine, and she sent me to the post office in St. James' street in that name because I could not have them come to my own rooms.

Why not?—Because for weeks and months I have been followed night and day by detectives. I suspected my letters were being tampered with.

With regard to Miss Earle, added Major Bury, one "Rose Day" he and some friends arranged to give lunch to the first woman who sold them a flower. He met Miss Earle and asked her to lunch.

"ASK NO QUESTIONS."

"She said she could not come, but would I give her some tea? I gave her high tea at a restaurant two days afterwards. I arranged to give her tea on another occasion, but, being detained, it did not take place."

"She asked me to write to me, and I said I sent the post-office in St. James' street, in the name of Lancelot Tremaine."

"I explained that was because my correspondence was being tampered with."

"She asked me, 'I gave you tea, and I said, 'Ask no questions and you will hear no stories.' I have never seen her from that day until this."

"Mr. Charles: A day or two after you met her did you go to a music hall? I gave her a ticket and sent a note to the stage door for Miss Earle?—I have never been to a music hall. I think I sent a note by a messenger."

Did you tell her you lived with your mother in Devonshire?—No. I gave her high tea at the country with my mother, but I told her that the Tremaines lived in the West Country.

Did you say to her, "Do you ever go away week-ends with men? If so, will you go with me?"—No. I should not want to go away with her when I knew every step I made was watched.

Sir E. Pollock: Was there anything improper in your relations with Miss Earle?—No.

The hearing was adjourned.

FATAL SEA SMASH.

Sleeping Man Killed and Two Hurt in Margate Collision.

SHIP'S SIDE STOVE IN.

One man was killed and two injured as the result of a collision near the Girdler Lightship, off Margate, between the steamer Goodwin and the mail boat, Maid of Orleans.

Thomas Coyle, of Glasgow, was killed, and two Glasgow firemen, William McLaughlin and John McBride, were taken to hospital in Gravesend seriously injured.

St. John's Daily Mirror yesterday that he, Coyle, McLaughlin and another man were asleep in their bunks when the collision occurred.

"The side of our ship crumpled up," he said, "and next moment my bunk was matchwood. The Goodwin's side, as a matter of fact, was stove in from the bows to the bridge."

The Goodwin was beached on the Girdler Bank, where, it is thought, she may become a total wreck.

Three lifeboats from Southend, Clacton and Margate went to the rescue, and the stewardesses and passengers were landed.

There were no casualties on board the Maid of Orleans, which dry-docked at Limehouse. Both her bows are damaged and the foremast was buckled.

Four men were rescued by the Bembridge lifeboat Lanchester from the vessel Goldsands, which broke adrift while being towed from Richborough to Southampton.

DUTY CALL TO M.P.'S.

Whips Issued for Reopening of Parliament Next Tuesday.

"Whips" were sent out yesterday by Mr. Bonar Law, Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George to members of their respective parties in the Commons urging them to be in their places when Parliament re-opens next Tuesday, February 13.

Lord Curzon has sent out a similar call to the Government's supporters in the Lords.

CHAIRS TO FIT WIGS.

Expert's Theory in £85,000 Action Regarding Powdering Period.

When the hearing was continued yesterday of the action in which Mr. Adolphe Sfrager, of Kent Lodge, Westgate-on-Sea, claims the return of about £85,000 paid for antique furniture, part of which was said to be bogus, to Digby, Limited, of Savile-row, it was stated by Mr. Macquoid, an expert witness for the defence, that he had known Mr. H. W. Lawrence, one of the directors of the firm, for some time.

The book published by him, he knew, had been extensively used by others for the purpose of imitating furniture, as well as for the purpose of writing other books.

Referring to ten William and Mary chairs and four stools which had been found as being covered with original English needlework, Mr. Macquoid said the needlework was Italian. He only knew of one set covered with original English needlework, and they are at Hampton Court.

The chairs had been shortened in the backs, probably to avoid the powdering on the wigs worn at the period.

AIR PROGRESS PERILS.

Visions of Silent Death-Dealing War 'Planes and Blazing Sky Liners.

"Large fleets of aeroplanes carrying high explosives, and bombs far more terrible than any in the last war, travelling without pilots during the night, perfectly silent both as to their propellers and their engines, directed electrically and carrying death to any town on which they might descend."

This was a prophecy of "the next war" by Sir William Joynton-Hicks (Overseas Trade Secretary) at the Air Conference yesterday, when he pleaded for the development of all-metal planes to save pilots from one of the greatest terrors of their lives—the possibility of fire while flying.

Referring to the need for parachutes, Mr. E. R. Calthorp visualised the possibility of a big air liner carrying a large number of passengers crashing with its saloon filled with charred bodies as the result of a fire, due, say, to a woman's leaking bottle of petrol for her hair and a turbitly dropped cigarette.

Sir Charles Holden said he called upon the Government to give immediate consideration to the foundation of an air mail throughout the Empire, and Major Seely advocated concentration on the problem of rising from and alighting on water, as, he said, the sea was the great natural aerodrome.

MOTOR SPIRIT RIDDLE.

A definition of motor spirit was discussed yesterday at a meeting at Whitehall at the session of the Departmental Committee on the Taxation and Regulation of Road Vehicles, the chairman stating that under one formula a person using paraffin in his lamps was liable to a penalty.

Sir Charles Holden said that he feared the difficulties that might arise from an acceptance of the definition, and the committee was adjourned until Tuesday to allow him to consult his technical advisers.

BEDROOM RAIDED.

Story of Counterfeit Coins Find by Police.

"KING EDWARD—1916."

On a charge of manufacturing and possessing counterfeit coins stated to resemble sovereigns and bearing the head of King Edward VII, but dated 1916, John Bergin (sixty-three) and his stepson, Walter Pilkington (twenty), both of 110, Lambeth-road, were remanded on bail yesterday by the Lambeth magistrate.

Inspector Reesley said that he arrested Pilkington at a jeweller's shop at 120a, Lambeth-road when he went there and inquired of the proprietor about some sovereigns.

The proprietor—Mr. Harman—took him into a back parlour and handed him a box containing about 100 metal coins, untried, bearing the head of King Edward on the face and St. George and the Dragon and dated 1916 on the reverse.

Pilkington said that the coins belonged to him and he had left them at the shop to be gilded.

Later, said the inspector, he visited 110, Lambeth-road, and in a bedroom found forty-four unfinished coins, chemicals, tools, and plaster of Paris moulds.

Bergin told the magistrate that he knew nothing about the matter, and Pilkington also said his stepfather had no knowledge of the things being there.

He added that he used to buy these coins from a stall-keeper named Goldstein, of Houndsditch, at four shillings a gross.

When they became difficult to get he began to do them himself. He was a racecourse tipster and gave them away free to his clients as an advertisement.

"BLUECOAT" TRAGEDY.

Council of School Vote Confidence in Headmaster and Staff.

Following the tragedy at Christ's Hospital (Bluecoat School) where Vivian Merton Tanner stabbed himself after a Rugby match, the Council of Almoners yesterday passed a resolution of "complete confidence in the headmaster and his staff."

They did so, "well knowing that no great school can be more free from cruelty than Christ's Hospital, or less liable to 'ragging.'"

Heartfelt sympathy was expressed to the bereaved parents, together with an assurance of the council's gratitude for their "large-hearted justice towards the school at this difficult time."

If the Board of Education desires a further inquiry the council will give every facility for it.

"THAT'S" LOST WILL.

Judge Finds in Favour of Miss Clarice Mayne in Probate Action.

The lost will of Mr. J. W. Tate, the variety artist, professionally known as "Tittit," was the subject of an action yesterday in the Probate Court.

Mr. T. Bucknill said that the plaintiff was Miss Clarice Mayne (Mr. Tate's widow), and the defendant was his daughter by a previous marriage. The action was to prove the contents of a lost will made in March, 1912, under which Mr. Tate left all his property to Miss Mayne.

After he died, in February, 1922, the will could not be found, and was on perfectly good terms with his wife, and there was no reason why he should revoke it.

Mr. Noel Middleton, for the defendant, said he did not oppose, but pointed out that Mr. Tate might have destroyed the will.

The Judge said that Mr. Tate intended to try and find it, but probably did not succeed. He accordingly pronounced for the will.

ALL-GOLD BRIDE.

Miss Phyllis Bethell Married to Major Cantrell-Hubbersty.

Miss Phyllis Bethell was a golden bride at her morning wedding at the Brighton Parish Church yesterday, where she married Major William Cantrell-Hubbersty, of Ragdale Hall, Leicestershire. Major-General Sir Henry Hodgson, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.V.O., acted as best man.

Wearing a mandarin cloak of gold tissue over a gold dress trimmed with heavy gold lace, the bride had a hat to match, and carried golden roses.

The Duchess of Somerset, in black, the Duchess of Buckingham and Chandos, the Marchioness of Titchfield, the Dowager Marchioness of Linlithgow and Lady Mary Hope, the Earl and Countess of Chesterfield, Lady Nunburnholme, Lady Hilda Murray, and the Countess Apponyi were among those present.

TYPEWRITING BY ELECTRICITY.

A typewriter worked by electricity and a machine that gives change by the touch of a key were among the exhibits at the Business Efficiency Exhibition, which was opened yesterday by the Postmaster-General at the Central Hall, Westminster.

The new electric adding and calculating machines which were claimed to be more accurate and quicker than the most skilled human brain.

MURDER CHARGE IN TAXI TRAGEDY.

Pomroy Remanded for Week—Confession Story.

CALM IN DOCK.

Detective Describes Wounds of Dead Girl.

There was a court sequel yesterday to the West End taxicab tragedy in the early hours of the previous day.

Described as an outfitter's assistant, of Hemel Hempstead, Bernard Pomroy (twenty-five), was remanded for a week by the Marlborough-street magistrate, on the charge of murdering Alice Cheshire (twenty), a housemaid, whose home was at Bourne End, Boxmoor (Herts).

Only evidence of arrest was given, a detective stating that Pomroy gave himself up to the police and "admitted that he did it."

Pomroy told the magistrate that he had no questions to ask.

"NOTHING TO TELL."

Inspector's Story of How Pomroy Gave Himself Up.

Pomroy appeared in court without a collar and his hair was dishevelled, but his buttonhole he wore a piece of green leaf. He sat calmly in the dock and listened closely to the evidence.

Detective-Inspector Vanner said that at 3.30 on Tuesday morning he saw Pomroy detained at Vine-street police station. His hands were covered with blood, also his shirt sleeves, his coat sleeves and his trousers.

"At five a.m. the same day," added the Inspector, "I attended at Charing Cross Hospital, where I saw the dead body of Alice Cheshire in the mortuary. She had a long wound in the bend of the neck."

At 5.30 a.m. he again saw Pomroy at Vine-street, and told him he would be charged with the murder of the girl by cutting her throat with a knife. He replied: "I have nothing to tell you."

When charged later he made no reply.

"ADMITTED HE DID IT."

The Magistrate: Were there any wounds on him?

Inspector Vanner: He was injured, I understand, about the collar bone and the right arm, which I believe was shattered, but I have no particulars at the moment. These will be given later.

The Magistrate (to Pomroy): Do you wish to ask the witness any questions?

Pomroy (in a firm voice): I do not.

Mr. D'Yncourt: Is that all the evidence you propose to offer? I have not heard how he came to be arrested.

Inspector Vanner: As a matter of fact, he surrendered to the police at Vine-street and admitted he did it.

Before Pomroy was remanded for a week his uncle asked for permission to see him.

Inspector Vanner said he understood the uncle was an ex-police officer, and permission was given.

It was stated that Pomroy's injuries, referred to in evidence, were received in the war.

TURKS THREATEN ALLIED WARSHIPS AT SMYRNA

Commanders Notified That Angora's Order for Fleet to Leave Will Be Enforced.

FRENCH TROOPS GO FORWARD IN THE RUHR

German Fears Aroused by Occupation of Three More Towns in Industrial District.

A delicate situation has arisen at Smyrna in consequence of Angora ordering Allied warships to leave by midnight.

Allied commanders have been notified by the local Turkish Military Commander that if they do not comply with the orders to leave he has orders to enforce their withdrawal.

The Allied High Commissioner has made a vigorous protest, warning the Turks of the grave consequences of any attempt at coercion. Admiral Nicholson has left Constantinople in a warship to take control of the situation at Smyrna.

It was reported yesterday from Essen that French troops have occupied three further industrial centres in the Ruhr.

STERN ALLIED WARNING FRESH FRENCH ADVANCE TO TURK COMMANDER.

"Grave Consequences" of Any Attempt at Coercion.

FRENCH COLONY GOING?

CONSTANTINOPLE, Wednesday. The Turkish newspapers here publish an order issued by the military commander of Constantinople that all officers on the active and retired lists are to present themselves for immediate registration.—Reuter.

ADMIRAL FOR SMYRNA.

British Naval Chief Leaves to Take Control of Situation.

News has been received in London that at the same time that the Turks at Smyrna ordered the removal of the Allied warships from off that port, intimation was sent to the Allied High Commissioner at Constantinople that this demand had been made to the naval officer.

The Angora representative who conveyed this intimation received a joint Allied reply that the warships would not leave.

The Allies pointed out that their action was justified under the terms of the Mudros Armistice of 1918, under which no restriction could be placed upon the movements of their warships from Turkish waters.

Admiral Nicholson has left Constantinople for Smyrna in a warship to take control of the situation.

It is believed that the order was issued by a Turkish official in Smyrna as a result of a communication received from Angora without the knowledge of Kemel or Ismet Pasha.

London and Paris Talks.—Conversations have been proceeding between London and Paris, and the British Government have definitely intimated their readiness to sign the Treaty as soon as the Turks signify that they will do so.

Ismet Goes Home.—With the other members of the Turkish delegation, Ismet Pasha left Lausanne yesterday for Angora. He said he would be back in three weeks and that the Conference was only suspended.

CAIRO SHOTS—DRASTIC MOVE.

Drastic measures have been taken following the attempted murder by revolver shots by a native in the Shubra district of a British railway employee named Ambler, says a Cairo message.

A substantial fine will be imposed upon the district, which will be cordoned by troops.

MINEY WINS SUIT AGAINST UNION.

One of 100 miners affected, Michael Tierney, obtained a declaration in the Chancery Division yesterday that the Derbyshire Miners' Union was not entitled to exclude him from membership. He works in a pit of which the shaft is in Yorkshire, but the workings extend under Derbyshire.

Three More Industrial Centres Occupied by Troops.

WHAT GERMANY FEARS.

ESSEN, Wednesday. It is stated in an authoritative German quarter that a French column, starting from Op-laden in the British zone, to-day occupied Lennep, Bergborn and Krebssege, southward of Elberfeld and Barmen.

Germans are of opinion that the eventual object of the French is to occupy the Elberfeld-Barmen industrial area, and thereby make the whole occupied territory an industrial unit.

Another police president has been arrested at Herne for refusing to instruct his subordinates to salute French officers.—Reuter.

[Lennep, five miles south-east of Barmen, has important manufactures of cloth and machines and dye works.]

A Berlin telegram says the French troops appear to be advancing on Radevormwald.

TRIPLE BLOCKADE PLANS.

Upon their return to Paris from the Ruhr yesterday M. le Trocquer and General Weygand informed M. Poincaré of the results of their visit.

The special correspondent at Dusseldorf of the Echo de Paris writes that in the course of an interview on Tuesday M. le Trocquer and General Degoutte and Weygand considered the question of the blockade and the sanctions to be taken if Germany persists in her attitude.

The complete blockade comprises three sections: (1) the coal and by-products blockade, which is already in effect, (2) the blockade of metallurgical products (these are both blockades of exit), (3) a blockade of entry, which consists in forbidding importation into the Ruhr of iron ore and slag necessary for the supply of the works in that area.

The Matin learns that the strike of miners in the Sarre basin is complete, and the railwaymen of Sarrebruck have shown their intention to support the miners.

U.S. DEBT REPAYMENT.

President Harding Urges Congress to Give Speedy Approval of Terms.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

President Harding, in Congress to-day, characterized the debt settlement with Britain as the first clearing of war-clouded skies in a debt-burdened world. The settlement, he said, was, "in effect, a pledge against war and war expenditures, and a rigid adherence to the production and retrenchment which enhances stability precisely as it discharges obligations."

He asked for speedy approval of the agreement, and denounced cancellation of war debts.—Exchange.

£19,000 THEFT STORY.

American Express Company's Clerk Arrested in Paris.

PARIS, Wednesday. One of the clerks of the American Express Company has been arrested at Neuilly in connection with the theft of a large sum of money from the offices of the company in Paris.

According to a police statement the arrested man was having appropriated 485,000 francs (£19,400 nominal).—Reuter.

WORK AS THE BEST CURE.

"I think good, honest work is the best cure for ailments, even in the case of neurasthenia," said a doctor at Westminster County Court yesterday.

J. J. Baker, Sir George Siferson Baker is making a good recovery after an operation for appendicitis.

Admiral Sir George Neville, K.C.B., has died of pneumonia in London at the age of seventy-two.

MAHSUDS BEATEN OFF.

British Casualties in Encounter with Indian Tribesmen.

Three British officers and two other ranks were wounded and four Indians killed and eleven wounded in an engagement between a British composite force and Mahsuds east of Makin, says Reuter from Allahabad. The tribesmen were beaten off.

Later the force were persistently harassed by snipers, and the Royal Welch Fusiliers sustained casualties, which they were unable to withdraw before dark.

One British officer and eleven other ranks were wounded, two British and one Indian other ranks were killed, while three Indian other ranks were wounded.

PHARAOH'S "SPIRIT."

Native View of Cobra That Killed Mr. Carter's Canary at Luxor.

LUXOR, Wednesday.

Lord Carnarvon, who was at Cairo accompanied by his daughter, is expected back in Luxor on Friday.

All manner of bizarre stories are circulating among the natives. One is that the night before Mr. Howard Carter opened the tomb his pet canary was killed by a cobra.

This, the natives say, was the form adopted by Tut-ankh Amen's spirit to show his resentment at the invasion of his privacy, the cobra being the emblem of royalty.

It is quite correct that, on the eve of the opening of Tut-ankh Amen's tomb, Mr. Carter's pet canary was killed by a cobra. "You may attach what significance to it you like," said Mr. Carter laughingly.

"Personally, in view of the results that followed, I do not see why it should not have been an omen of good fortune. Perhaps my little canary was the God of Evil and the cobra was really doing me a good turn."—Reuter.

THE QUEEN'S VISIT TO PRINCESS MARY.

Her Majesty Cancels Her Luncheon Plan.

THE KING PAYS CALL.

Royal Parents Leave House After a Brief Stay.

The Queen went yesterday morning to Chesterfield House, Mayfair, to visit her daughter, Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles, with the intention of returning to the Palace for luncheon.

Her Majesty decided to remain at Chesterfield House.

The King joined the Queen and Viscount Lascelles at Chesterfield House, shortly after three o'clock in the afternoon.

After a brief stay the King, accompanied by the Queen, returned for the time being to Buckingham Palace.

Lord Lascelles fulfilled a number of private engagements in the West End during the afternoon.

THE PRINCE AT A MEET.

Pouring Rain Does Not Deter Him from Early Morning Canter.

Almost immediately after his arrival at the Craven Lodge Club, Melton Mowbray, the Prince of Wales inspected his stud of seventeen hunters.

In the evening he attended the weekly dance held at the Young Men's Institute in connection with the Embassy Dance Club, which is composed of members of the Melton Hunt.

Rising early yesterday, the Prince rode one of his hunters at croquet, and subsequently attended a meet of the Belvoir Hounds.

Rain was teeming down when he left in his car, and it continued throughout the morning. A number of followers saw their horses home, but the Prince braved the downpour.

ROYAL WEDDING DATE.

Duke of York's Marriage at the Abbey on April 26.

The marriage of the Duke of York with the Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon will take place at Westminster Abbey on Thursday, April 26.

GREAT SWISS LANDSLIDE.

1,500,000 Cubic Metres of Earth Swept Into Dавos Lake.

DAVOS, Wednesday. A pumping installation, including two motors of 200 h.p., on the south side of Lake Davos, was carried into the lake by a great landslide which occurred here last night.

A machinist who was engaged in working the pumps and who was swept into the water escaped with his life, but another workman was drowned.

A million and a half cubic metres of earth and rock are estimated to have fallen into the lake.—Reuter.

BABIES' CLUB TUNNEL.

Discovery by Irish Troops Near Castle Yard, Dublin.

Free State troops raided St. Monica's Babies Club in Werburgh-street, Dublin, yesterday, and discovered a tunnel extending for some distance towards the upper castle yard at the back of Werburgh-street. Quantities of ammunition and some arms were also found.

One of the soldiers in the search party said that a land mine had been found. The caretaker was the only occupant of the house at the time. A young woman knocked later. She was carrying a bag which, it is alleged, was found to contain parts of a Thompson machine gun. The woman and her box were taken away by the troops.

News has reached Queenstown that the Free State Government steamer Slievenamon, carrying troops, has gone on the rocks near Ballycotton.

THREE YEARS FOR MOTOR THEFTS.

That eight stolen motor-cars had been traced to his garage at Brighton was stated at the Old Bailey yesterday, when Alfred Emery was sentenced to three years' penal servitude for conspiracy to receive cars.

The other men charged with him were sentenced as follows: R. Gray, eighteen months' hard labour; S. A. Garbett, nine months in second division; and E. P. Manners, six months' second division.

A "mother's Glaxo baby"

The father of this bonnie little fellow writes: "Douglas is a firm, healthy boy of three years and three months, and is admired everywhere. Everyone asks if he is a Glaxo baby. We say he is a 'mother's Glaxo baby,' as his mother took Glaxo both before and after baby came."

We guarantee the genuineness of every photograph and every letter we publish. Originals may be seen at our offices on request.

Take Glaxo yourself three times a day

The importance of Glaxo in the dietary of expectant and nursing mothers cannot be too strongly emphasised as a means of promoting a good supply of healthy breast milk. Nutritiveness and ease of digestion are the first essentials of your food during this period, and Glaxo combines these two qualities in a high degree.

You can take Glaxo by itself as a delicious drink, or in cocoa, puddings, soups, etc. It has repeatedly been found that Glaxo taken by the mother herself, both before and after the birth, improves her breast-milk. Many mothers, by taking Glaxo, have been able to satisfy baby at the breast, whereas before it was impossible.

The Super-Milk

"Builds Bonnie Babies"

Glaxo is sold by all Chemists—7/6, 4/6, 2/6, 1/6—in airtight sealed tins.

Glaxo provides in a pure, germ-free, readily digestible form, everything baby needs to build strong, straight bones, good teeth, and a sturdy, vigorous constitution. It is a complete food, and is prepared by mixing with hot, boiled water only.

You can give Baby Glaxo in three ways. You can take it yourself before and after the birth to promote an ample supply of nutritious breast-milk; you can give it to Baby in addition to the breast; or as the sole food, right from the start.

When Baby's teeth arrive you may begin to introduce a little GLAXO MALTED FOOD into Baby's dietary. GLAXO MALTED FOOD does not take the place of Glaxo; but, when mixed with Glaxo, it provides a suitable means of accustoming Baby naturally to the assimilation of farinaceous food. It does NOT increase the cost of feeding Baby because less GLAXO is used. At your Chemists, in airtight sealed tins, price 1/3 and 2/4.

TRIAL TIN POST FREE if you send your name and address, and the name and address of your chemist, to GLAXO (Dept. 2), 56, Osanburgh St., London, N.W. 1.

Ask your Chemist to show you the GLAXO FEEDER. "The Perfect Feeder for the Perfect Food."

The Girl who "Couldn't Get On"

How She Found Success

"No," she'll never do," said Sir Richard decisively. "Oh, why?" The charming girl to whom he spoke looked distressed.

"I know Miss Hazelton is thoroughly competent," "I'm sorry, but she's not the kind of girl that I would care to appoint to such an important position where attention to detail is vital—she's not even careful of her own appearance."

"Oh, I know her appearance is against her, but she's awfully clever."

"To tell you the truth, I really didn't bother to find out her capabilities."

Grace stood silent for a moment. Then she said earnestly: "Sir Richard, will you do me a special favour? Will you give Miss Hazelton another chance?"

Sir Richard frowned.

"Oh, please do!" she begged. Sir Richard looked at her and softened. He had a fatherly admiration for the fresh charm of this attractive girl.

"Very well, then," he agreed. "To-morrow first thing."

That night Grace found Molly in tears. "Now," she admonished, "don't get upset. Sir Richard has promised to see you again."

"What's the good?" lamented Molly. "Oh, pull yourself together!" said Grace.

"You're going to see Sir Richard to-morrow, and you're going to look a different girl. See what I have brought you," and she drew from her suit-case the smartest of tailored frocks.

"Oh, Grace! What a darling frock; but I could never wear blue, my complexion couldn't stand it."

"Don't argue," said Grace, "but come here," and she took from her case a most attractive purple and gold package. "This is the secret of an attractive complexion, Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. Use it and your skin will be as velvety looking, as white and smooth in appearance as you can wish."

"Even a skin like mine?" asked Molly. "Rather! Dust your face with Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. Use this. It is so exquisitely fine that it gives a most becoming flower-like bloom to the skin. You will find it is easy to get frocks and hats to suit you when you use Pompeian BEAUTY Powder."

"And what a delicious fragrance!" "Yes, the perfume alone would make it a joy to use. Then the complexion can be matched so exactly in one of the four shades of Pompeian BEAUTY Powder that its use is never ostentatious. You and I have brown-gold hair and fair skins, so we use Naturelle. There is Rachel for brunettes and White for very light blondes, while people with bright complexions use Rosée. But the really amazing point about Pompeian BEAUTY Powder is the way it stays on."

"Oh, that's almost too good to be true!" "Yes, you never have to keep re-powdering if you use Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. Dancing, motoring, playing games, it stays on and actually protects your skin from the effects of sun and wind. See what an improvement Pompeian BEAUTY Powder has made to your complexion already. And now slip on this dress. Doesn't it suit you?"

"Grace," cried Molly, "I never dreamed I could look so attractive."

"Powdering with Pompeian BEAUTY Powder works wonders. It not only gives your skin a beautiful tone, but it softens the contours of your face, adding charm to your features. And don't you feel different?"

"Rather," sighed Molly rapturously. "Now, keep this Pompeian BEAUTY Powder," said Grace. "Use it before you go to see Sir Richard, and wear the new dress, and I am sure you will get the job."

And she did.

latest and greatest story

The Price of Parenthood

These charming plates — the happiest family pictures ever painted—make the most astounding value ever offered by any weekly periodical, being superbly printed in FULL COLOURS and measuring  $11\frac{1}{2}$  ins. by  $8\frac{3}{8}$  ins. each. They are being given away this week and next week inside every copy of the "SUNDAY COMPANION," the first being included in the issue on sale TO-DAY in which you will also find the opening instalment of Joseph Hocking's remarkable story, "The Price of Parenthood."

This great story tells of the difficult problems of family life of the present day, when many parents are flouted and mocked by the children upon whom they have lavished every care, and many homes are on the brink of disaster in consequence.

There is not a mother or father in the land who will not feel stronger and more fitted to face the problems of family life as they read this wonderful story of Mary Benson—Mother, and Robert Benson—Father.

TRAGEDY OR FARCE?

THE position at Lausanne quickly shifts from the tragic to the farcical.

Lord Curzon has passed from a "terrible but momentary depression" into a mood of lofty self-congratulation. The Conference, which appeared to be dead, is apparently only in a state of suspended animation. It may be resumed—or it may not. If it recovers from its syncope, the Treaty, which the Turks rejected, may become the foundation of Near Eastern settlement.

All these variations provide plenty of drama for diplomatists of the estimable type of Lord Curzon, who regards it as matter, evidently, of European importance that his train de luxe should not be kept waiting.

Think of it! "The moments were slipping by" while Ismet still argued. The train had been delayed for thirty minutes! "We" could wait no longer. So "we" left. Nothing like it has been seen since the days of Louis XIV., who nearly had to wait, on a celebrated occasion, for his coach—j'ai failli attendre.

A great incident, no doubt, from the diplomatic "viewpoint."

Not so important, however, for the taxpayer here.

He wants to get this Mosul or Iraq or Chanak or Constantinople business swiftly settled, with a view to our withdrawal from regions that absorb our money and threaten our soldiers' lives.

If Lord Curzon can "turn again," like Whittington, and get us peace he need not worry about the lateness of trains. A day or two more at Lausanne for the diplomats would be better than a few years of war for us all.

OLD FASHIONS.

AGAIN there is talk of a return to grandmotherly dresses for modern women—crinolines or hooped skirts, hair plaited or demurely smoothed, flounces and sprigged muslin and the rest. And again we say that, on the whole, we don't believe it!

For a few ceremonial occasions—possibly! Not for the working day, not for offices, trams, tubes and motor-omnibuses.

These ample "modes" do not accord with the intense activity of the modern woman. Grandmamma sat still and embroidered or played the angelic harp. She had not heard of Jazz. You could not dance a Tango in a crinoline.

THE SCOLDING WIFE.

SOME of our magistrates have a grim sense of humour which prompts them occasionally to recommend violent punishments for frequent offences—the "cat" for the cruel husband, or the ducking-stool for the long-tongued wife.

Most of this is mere archaology. We cannot go back to the ducking-stool. The neighbours wouldn't like it. It would gain sympathy, at once, for the noisy nagging wife.

Let us recommend a better way with her. It is summed up in one word—silence.

Don't answer back! Nothing so suppresses a scold as dead silence. The hero of Anatole France, the immortal M. Bergeret, tried it with success. Mme. Bergeret left him because he never answered her arguments.

IN MY GARDEN.

FEB. 7.—It is always useful to have a compost heap in the garden. It should be made up of leaves, decayed vegetation, ashes from the garden fire, road-sidings and turf.

The heap should be turned over every six months and mixed with plenty of soil or lime. When in a suitable condition dig it into vacant ground.

Plant Jerusalem artichokes during favourable weather, also horseradish and shallots. Garden paths should be put in order before the spring comes.

THROUGH "THE MIRROR."

In the Ruhr—The Lady Servant—Modern Woman and Old Fashions—Useless Letters—School Prefects.

THE GERMAN WORKER.

LUDENDORF is being mobbed in Austria and called "murderer" by the workmen whenever he passes. These men have suffered intensely from German militarism, and have not forgotten it.

If Stinnes and Co. do not bend to the just demands of the French, the miners of the Ruhr will rightly hold the former as responsible for their misery, as the Austrians held the German military clan. AN ENGLISH WORKING MAN.

THE PINPRICK POLICY.

THE occupation of the Ruhr did not mark the beginning of the numberless trickeries which the Germans invented to annoy the French.

Long ago they misdirected their deliveries of

SCHOOL REMINISCENCES.

YOUR correspondent, Mr. J. A. Fletcher-Reece, would do well to picture to himself a public school without prefects.

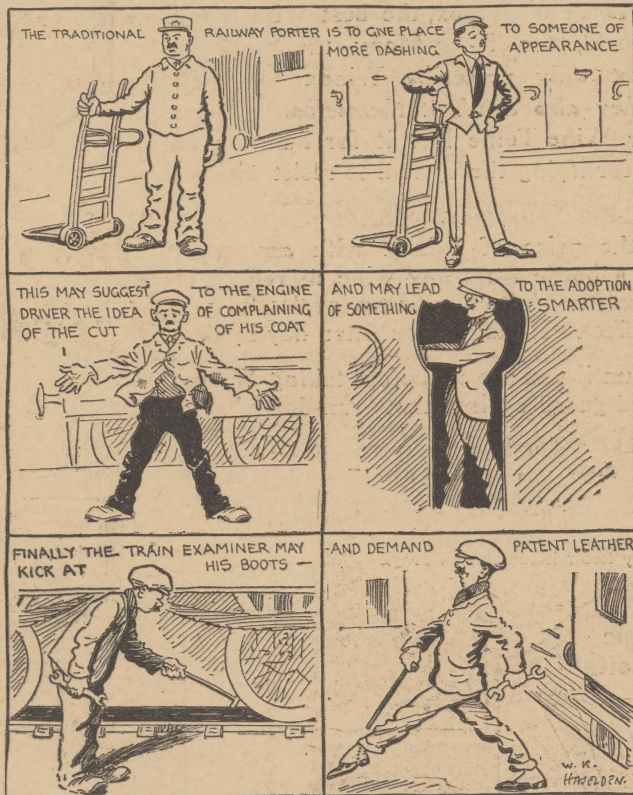

Result, in, say, three weeks, chaos! One cannot expect masters to become policemen, and so the only solution to the problem is to appoint boys to keep law and order amongst boys.

Of course, a certain amount of bullying goes on in every school, and prefects are apt at times to take advantage of the power given them.

I was at Haileybury for three years, and having read "Tom Brown's Schooldays" I was quite hurt to think that more notice was not taken of me.

During my three years there, there was very little bullying. A really sound house master

SMARTER CLOTHES FOR RAILWAY WORKERS.

Some railway porters are complaining of the "cut" of their trousers. Does this foreshadow the coming of the railway "nut"?

coal and timber, so as to disorganise the French arrangements at the receiving bases.

They continued these irregularities until told that if any more reparations trains came to wrong stations it would constitute a default. After that there were no more mistakes. HAMPSHIRE. F. W.

THE "LADY" SERVANT.

MUCH that your contributor says about the drawbacks of the "lady" servant is true—or was true before the war.

At that time there were a great many "superior persons" going about who were willing to accept light employment, and so called themselves servants, but only intended to suggest, by that name, that they were willing to arrange flowers and potter about the house. However, I fancy that this type of "lady" has rather died out since the war. I know many middle-class women who would be perfectly willing to enter domestic service and work hard if only they could meet in the kitchen other women of their own class. But it is a little hard to ask them to associate with people with whom they have nothing in common.

ANOTHER HOUSEWIFE.

PETTED CHILDREN.

THE petted son will certainly make a bad husband, but the petted daughter will make a worse wife.

Accustomed to having her own way in everything, she will finish by driving her unfortunate husband either into the Bankruptcy Court or the lunatic asylum. MATRIMONY.

will see that prefects as well as the boys themselves are kept in their place.

OLD HAILEYBURIAN.

DON'T ANSWER!

PARNELL always used to say that a letter unanswered answered itself in a few days. Therefore let us think of Parnell when we receive useless letters.

Those who will send letters are those with nothing much to do except to laze about at home. But what, to my mind, is worse than useless letters is useless phone calls from idle people. I know a woman who just hangs about her flat all day, saying: "I wonder whom I can 'phone up now?" She 'phones many of her friends, and is "put off" by the extremely curt replies at the other end.

A business man cannot be bothered by useless letters or 'phone calls. A BUSINESS MAN.

WHY NOT VEILS?

ONE of your contributors wants us to return to veils—the sort of veil, I suppose, that dangled from a hat, was always getting crooked, and was a tremendous nuisance to arrange and keep tidy.

I don't think that women will ever return to these old fashions. And the reason is that the new type of woman is an open-air type.

She also works a great deal more than her parents did, and the average girl in a City office cannot afford to spend her time fussing over such things as veils and hoop skirts. M. W. Lime-street, E.C.

RICH WIVES WHO ARE PENNILESS.

GIVE DRESS ALLOWANCES WITHOUT CONDITIONS!

By CYRIL STERN.

WHEN I was a child a penny made me a rich man.

But it had to be an unconditional penny, one that I could spend when and where and how I liked—one that I should never be called to account for all the days of my life.

There were other pennies of a different sort which carried no sense of riches with them—pennies I had to spend on bootlaces or lead pencils or bus fares.

These belonged, not to my fancy, but to the facts of life. And so they never belonged to me at all!

I remembered all this the other day when a woman whom I supposed to be very rich made a strange confession. She told me that she had scarcely a penny which she could call her own.

Her husband is a millionaire. He has bought for her many houses, and he gives her many luxuries—cars, jewellery, furs—anything she asks for.

But he never gives her money. He has refused to do this on the plea that she can buy what she likes and he will pay for it.

He is a business man of a type that is not very uncommon—I imagine a kind, even generous, man in his own way. If he wants anything himself he buys it at one or other of half a dozen shops where he has dealt all his life. Why should not his wife do the same?

His wife knows why; but she cannot tell him. He would not understand.

"WHAT DID YOU BUY?"

Men of his type cannot understand, whether they be millionaires or pedlars. They are so far away themselves from the adventure days that they have forgotten that subtle but tremendous distinction between conditional and unconditional pennies.

And so their wives are always well cared for and always short of money.

Even when an occasion has brought forth a present in the form of a cheque it is too well understood that sooner or later the question will be asked: "What did you buy?"

I think no woman ever quite forgives a man for that question; I think when it is asked something of the beauty and intimacy of life is lost for ever.

For the implication is always the same: "You are not fit to be trusted with my money." The man does not know that he is thinking anything so disagreeable; we all possess great powers of self-deception.

But his wife knows. And the knowledge, gradually, sours her temper.

In the end she would rather wear rags than be beholden to him.

It is not the fashion to blame money matters for married misery; money is not supposed to count in this relationship.

But that is a superficial view. Money, in its more intimate sense, is the very essence of personality; a symbol by which you may recognise great hearts and small ones.

It is thus that women always see it.

For the joy of money is the joy of freedom of choice; the unconditional joy of being oneself. In that sense houses and cars and jewels are not money at all, but mere incidentals of life.

HOW IS YOUR APPETITE?

Signs You Should Watch For

Loss of appetite, distress after eating, shortness of breath, a feeling of utter weakness—these are symptoms that are familiar to most sufferers from stomach trouble. The tonic method of treating these disorders is the one not aim to do the work of the stomach, but builds up the weakened organs so that they can do the work that nature intended.

This is accomplished by improving and increasing the blood supply, and for this purpose there is nothing to equal Dr. Williams' pink pills. By their action in enriching and increasing the blood, these pills correct serious stomach disorders, and revitalize the nervous system. For indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, and all forms of weakness and debility caused through thin blood, Dr. Williams' pink pills are recommended, even if ordinary remedies have been tried without relief.

Remember that Dr. Williams' pink pills make new blood; restore shattered nerves; and carry health and vigour to every organ of the body.

SHORTEST HONOURS LIST.

Mastership of the Fitzwilliam—Authors as Actors—Prince George's Return.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S HONOURS LIST issued last evening is unusually short—in fact, I think I am right in saying that a list of fourteen names only constitutes the smallest on record. Moreover, for the first time it has been issued separately, and has not been included with the long departmental list, as has been the custom in the past. For the first time, too, the list has been submitted to a Committee of three Privy Counsellors, which was set up a little while ago for the purpose of examining the claims of recipients of honours before placing their names before the King.

Sir George Younger.

Sir George Younger, who becomes a Viscount, is the most notable personality in the list. With sixteen years of parliamentary life and the wrecking of the Coalition to his credit, he may be considered to have earned a seat in the dignified atmosphere of the Upper Chamber. Lieutenant-Colonel James Younger, D.S.O., who did so well with the Pilo and Forfar Yeomanry, becomes heir to the new Viscounty.

A By-Election.

That peerages would be conferred upon Sir George Younger and Mr. Pike Pease, who is one of the two new barons, was predicted in The Daily Mirror some time ago. In the case of Mr. Pease, of course, his translation to "another place" involves a by-election at Darlington, the constituency he has represented since 1898, with only a few months' interval in 1910.

Seat for Health Minister?

Contrary to a very persistent rumour, which had never been given too much weight by "those who knew," Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen, the Minister for Health, does not appear among those singled out for honour. As he is still unprovided with a seat, gossip became very busy in political circles last night as to the possibility of Sir Arthur being offered a chance of contesting the seat vacated by Mr. Pike Pease at Darlington.

Lady Curzon's Health.

I am not surprised to hear that Marchioness Curzon is laid up with a bad throat and was unable to return to London with the Foreign Secretary, for she is by no means a hardy woman. The cold of Switzerland and the fatigue of travelling has had a bad effect. Lady Curzon, though in appearance a tall, fine woman, finds the duties consequent on acting as political hostess and social star rather too much for her strength at times.

Women Painters.

There will be a private view to-day at the Royal Institute Galleries of the exhibition of the Society of Women Artists. Yesterday I threaded my way up the stairs through stacks of canvases (which represented the previous exhibition going home), and found a brave array of work consisting of 521 exhibits in all. The average merit grows year by year. There must soon be more than one woman in the R.A. At present Mrs. Swynnerton is the only woman to possess academic rank.

Mrs. Blakeney Ward.

President's Portraits

Mrs. Blakeney Ward, the president of the Society of Women Artists, is the well-known painter who did a portrait last year of Princess Mary, to be presented to H.R.H. as the society's wedding gift. Mrs. Ward has several fine portraits in the present exhibition, and others whose work stands out are Dorothea Sharp, Lota Bowen, Flora Lion, Emily Paterson, Eva Savory and A. K. Browning.

TO-DAY'S GOSSIP

News and Views About Men, Women and Affairs in General

Green Heels!

Coloured heels are coming into fashion for the wear of smart women, it would seem. At a big function the other day I noticed that the Hon. Lady Bingham had on a small hat of shaded green ostrich feathers and her shoes had heels of green, too!

A Leicestershire Courtship.

Though Miss Bethell did not issue any formal invitations to her wedding, her friends all turned up in the church. She and Major Cantrell-Hubbersty will settle in Leicestershire, where, by the way, the courtship took place. He is an excellent horseman, and has had a good deal to do with Army horses.

The Bride's Brother.

Mrs. Cantrell-Hubbersty is sister to Captain Adrian Bethell, of the 2nd Life Guards. His first wife is now Mrs. Lionel Tennyson, but he married again two years ago Miss Cotterell, a granddaughter of the Duke of Richmond.

"Mrs. Trapes" III.

I am sorry to hear that Miss Muriel Terry, whose clever performance of Mrs. Trapes, the proprietress of the "Ladies' seminary" is one of the features of "Polly" at the Kingsway Theatre, is in hospital. She has just successfully undergone an operation, and is expected back in the cast within a few weeks.

Hunting Field Romance.

A new combination in the hunting world is announced. Lord Essex is to be Joint Master of the Fitzwilliam with Mr. George Fitzwilliam. Lord Essex is a thoroughly keen sportsman, and his wife shares these tastes also—in fact, I believe they live in love in the hunting field. Lord Essex is a son of the late peer by his first wife, who was a sister of the Duchess of Beaufort. Lady Joan Peake and Lady Iris Capell are his half-sisters.

Good Stable.

Lord and Lady Bradford have come to London. Lady Bradford has had a good deal of hunting. She has some fine horses, which she placed at the disposal of Princess Mary for her honeymoon at Weston last year.

Lord Essex.

Stories and Dogs.

Lady Kitty Vincent, writer of charming short stories, has yet another hobby. She is an Alsatian wolfhound enthusiast, and has brought one of her pets into her fiction. A daughter of the house of Airlie, she married a soldier when in her teens.

Duchess and Dancing.

Of all our Duchesses the young Duchess of Sutherland appears to be the fondest of dancing. She was entertaining a big party at the Berkeley a few nights ago. On the same evening the Prince of Wales was dancing there.

Author as Actor.

Mr. Algernon Blackwood's resolve to become an actor at mature years is not without precedent in the history of modern literature. Mr. Arthur Machen had already made a high reputation for himself as a writer when, for a period he joined the Benson Company, and also acted with the late George Alexander. Mr. Blackwood is to appear in Henry Ainley's production of Drinkwater's play, "Oliver Cromwell."

Algernon Blackwood's Adventures.

This amiable writer of "spook" stories had dealt in many trades before he took to fiction. He is a son of the late Sir Arthur Blackwood, who married the widow of the sixth Duke of Manchester. In his early years he farmed in Canada, became a gold prospector, ran an hotel and was engaged in the dried milk business. He had a journalistic training.

Drinkwater's "Cromwell."

The rehearsals for John Drinkwater's "Cromwell," which will be first performed at Brighton on February 19, with Ainley in the name part, are proceeding in London. Following his precedent in the case of "Abraham Lincoln," the author divides his play into eight scenes. The second scene is St. Stephen's Chapel, Westminster, at midnight of November 22, 1641, with the Commons of England in session.

Prince George's Return.

On Saturday Prince George will leave Cap Ferrat, where he has been staying for some weeks, with his uncle the Duke of Connaught. He has, I hear, had a most enjoyable time on the Riviera, and looks forward to an annual visit. Lord Derby is expected at Cannes again at the end of the month, and another interesting visitor is Mrs. Lambert Chambers, the lawn tennis player, who is staying near Lady Wavertree.

Apartments at Kensington!

The Earl and Countess of Athlone have not yet left for the South of France, but intend to do so next week. When they return they hope to enter into residence in the apartments in Kensington Palace which were in the occupation of the late Duchess of Albany—which, meanwhile, are being redecorated and somewhat modernised as regards furniture and fittings.

At Forbes House.

Lord and Lady Granard have started entertaining again at Forbes House, Halkin-street, and it usually takes the form of a dinner of thirty or forty covers, with bridge to follow. They gave one last week, and again last night. Forbes House has a delightful pillared hall of white marble, and the dining-room has white Adam decorations.

Hopes of Immortality!

Mr. Roxburgh, the young headmaster of the new public school at Stowe, is up to date in his methods. We have been hearing a great deal lately about Press agents. Mr. Roxburgh is his own. In a communication stating that applications are being received in large numbers, the headmaster mentions that an endowment fund is to be launched. To contribute to this, he suggests, is "an excellent way of gaining immortality for one's name!"

From My Diary.

Nobleness of character is nothing else but steady love of good, and steady scorn of evil.
—J. A. Froude.

Mr. Samuel L. Rothapel, of New York, owner of the Capitol, the world's largest theatre, is now on a visit to London.

Miss Ellis Jeffreys has postponed a visit to the Riviera owing to the "obstinate success" of "Decameron Nights."

Reduction.

A French medical authority has words of comfort for the obese. One of the functions of the lungs, he says, is to break up superfluous adipose deposit in the system, and the lungs can be stimulated to do their work properly by deep breathing exercises. He tells of one patient who by this means knocked down about forty pounds off his weight in four months.

Fine Hymn Tune.

Though much has been written about the Rev. W. Baring-Gould as the author of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," there has appeared as yet no mention of the man who composed the favourite setting of the well-known hymn—and without which its popularity would perhaps never have been so great! To Arthur Sullivan is due that stirring melody.

Serbian Caricaturist.

Sava Botzaritch, whose curious portraits in caricature of well-known people are causing considerable interest in artistic circles, is the son of Anastas Botzaritch, the famous Serbian painter. He served as an interpreter with the British Army in the Near East during the Great War, and is shortly holding an exhibition of his work in London.

Distinguished Prisoners!

A prison is a queer place for snobbishness to prevail in, but the growing habit of chronicling the prison concerts and mentioning the names of the distinguished prisoners present suggests that it is a plant which may soon be fostered there.

Will your child grow up strong?

The foundations of a sound constitution must be laid in childhood. The frail boy and delicate girl may outgrow their weakness; but it is never safe to trust to chance in matters of health. Give your children Virol now.

Every day you can see men and women whose poor physique and impaired vitality are traceable to an insufficiency, in early years, of those essential food substances which Virol supplies, and which are not abundant enough in the ordinary diet.

Virol is the very best food for making good blood and building up strong constitutions. It is specially valuable in these dark cold months.

Not only does Virol keep young people generally fit and well nourished, but it definitely increases their power to resist the colds and other epidemics so prevalent at this season. Give Virol regularly throughout the Winter.

PIP, SQUEAK AND WILFRED

A Happy Family of Pets Whose Comical Adventures Are Famous Throughout the World

OUR IMPORTANCE GROWS.

X-ON-SEA.

MY DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,—

Excitement is growing in this quiet seaside place over the discovery of the so-called "treasure chamber" in the cliffs by Pip, Squeak and Wilfred. Already the news has leaked out and the entrance to the cave to-day was thronged with children and grown-ups, all anxious to have a peep at the mysterious room inside. However, for the present, Pip keeps guard and only a few people are allowed to enter.

Among my visitors to-day was an elderly, white-bearded professor, who said he was a member of the local antiquarian society. "I

"I expect so. Sometimes I wish I could give up keeping rabbits and take to guinea-pigs, but there seems little hope of it. Rabbits haunt me."

"Have you any other hobbies?"

"I like reading and smoking and playing the piano, and—doing nothing."

"What are your favourite sports?"

"I knock a golf ball about occasionally and am considered rather good at 'hot rice.'"

"Hot rice?"

"Why not? It's an excellent game—a kind of rounders, you know. You want plenty of dash to be good at it."

What the young reporter thought of me I don't know, but he took everything down in a big notebook. I shall be rather interested to read his article in the local "Eagle" next week.

Your affectionate
Uncle Dick.

A RIDDLE ALPHABET.

And the Story of the Impatient Diner.

ASK your friends these riddles, which are all about different letters in the alphabet. They are not so easy to answer as you might think—just try some of them on daddy!

What letters are always buzzing?—The B's (bees).

What letter do you visit every year?—The C (see).

What are the laziest letters in the alphabet?—The E's (ease).

What letters can see?—The I's (eyes).

What letters ought to build nests?—The J's (jays).

What letter in the alphabet is a measurement?—The L (ell).

What two letters are human beings?—MN (men).

What letter is a cry of pain?—O (Oh!).

What letter is found outside a theatre?—Q (queue).

What letters come from India and China?—The T's (tees).

What letters make a verb?—The U's (use).

What letters are really trees?—The U's again (yews).

What are the cleverest letters in the alphabet?—The Y's (wise).

What letter asks a question?—Y again (why).

Here is a little story about letters.

A very hungry man went to a restaurant, but although he banged the table loudly the waiter did not notice him. At last the poor man, feeling quite ill with hunger, cried out: "Here, you, waiter! R U D E F because I'm M T!" (Are you deaf, because I'm empty.) Then the waiter has, tended to serve him.

At I hope you won't say anything like that whenever you are dining out!

PETS AND POOR CHILDREN.

TO-MORROW evening Pip, Squeak and Wilfred will "do their bit" towards entertaining 500 poor children at Poplar.

These children, who don't often have a chance of seeing a play, have been invited to watch a special performance of "Smile Awhile," a jolly revue at the Queen's Theatre, Poplar.

To add to the treat, the pets will appear on the stage and "make their bow" to their little guests. This will not be the first time that Pip, Squeak and Wilfred, have visited the boys and girls of Poplar; once before they made a journey into that part of London, where they were greeted by hundreds of delighted children.

They have come specially up to town from the seaside in order to see the boys and girls at the theatre.

Squeak feels rather nervous at appearing on the stage, but no doubt she will manage to behave with her usual dignity. She will soon feel at home among the Poplar kiddies.

ALICE AND THE ARMY.

ALICE adores adventures, and acting at armies always affords an agreeable afternoon's amusement.

Arranging an American army as antagonists, Alice, armed and astride an admirable "Arab," announces an attack and, appearing anxious and alarmed, as Alice's achievements are admitted as absolutely amazing. Alice artfully aims at an ambush, and achieving an advantage after an attack.

Accordingly, ambling apace, horseback and alert, Alice advances, armour, axe and all, and achieves an ambush. Americans are all afoot, and are afraid at Alice's agile approach. After ambush, Alice attempts an attack, and, after an awful affray, Americans, amazed and abandoned, are almost annihilated. After—ambushes! Alice, all aglow at advantage, and arms akimbo, arrogantly accepts American army's abject apologies.

RUSH OF "TOURISTS" TO SEE "TREASURE CHAMBER."

1. Pip was "on guard" outside the treasure cave yesterday. A boy begged for admittance.

2. More children began to arrive to "see the treasures." "You can't go in," said Pip, firmly.

3. And then a little girl, in charge of two tiny babies—twins—joined the crowd.

4. When the children found they couldn't see the treasures they all started crying.

5. "We'd better give them a few relics from the cave to quieten them," said Squeak.

6. All the youngsters were delighted with "presents" of old bottles and tins.

A HAPPY KING.

And the Song He Sings at Tea-Time.

IN Kitchenland there lives a king,
Who all the afternoon will sing;
He's dressed in silver armour, and
His nose is longer than my hand!

He's rather silent when he's cold,
And if he's hot he'll often scold;
But just before we have our tea
His majesty will sing for glee.

He sits upon his lordly throne,
Grand, genial, gracious and alone;
Alas! his temper's also royal—
With rage he'll often hiss and boil!

Perhaps you've guessed this monarch's name:

In every kitchen he's the same.

On every oven-throne he sings,
King Kettle, happiest of kings!

—J. F.

"GUESS IT IF YOU CAN!"

What pets are beaten?—Cat-pets.
Why are crows sensible birds?—Because they never complain without "caws."
Why are gloves like pips?—Because they are always found in pairs (pears).
What country do cats come from?—Purr-sia, purr-haps.

am Professor Pottlewell," he said, looking at me earnestly through his spectacles. "I expect you've heard of me?"

"I'm sorry I haven't had that pleasure," I returned.

"You have not read my treatise on prehistoric neoliths?"

"I'm afraid I haven't. In fact, I don't quite know what a neolith is."

"Strange—very strange. Well, I wondered if I might examine your cave—I may be able to give you some valuable information with regard to the various ancient articles found inside."

"I shall be delighted, I'm sure," I said.

Professor Pottlewell, armed with a big magnifying glass, is now hard at work examining the "treasure-chamber." "I'm afraid he'll be rather disappointed!"

I AM INTERVIEWED.

Also I have been honoured with a visit from a newspaper reporter, who states that he has been told to write up "two columns" about the treasures for the "X-On-Sea Eagle."

"I should also like to add a few words about yourself," he told me. "Are you the real Uncle Dick?"

"I believe so," I replied.

"Are you fond of animals? Did you keep pets when you were young?"

"Yes, I had a couple of lop-eared rabbits and several white rats."

"I suppose that is why you are so fond of Wilfred to-day?"

A PLEASANT WAY TO KEEP BABY HAPPY

Does your baby enjoy life and show it? Does he eat with an appetite and sleep soundly?

If your baby is not happy it is probably because he is troubled with constipation. His bowels are not acting regularly.

By HENRY ST. JOHN COOPER

SYNOPSIS.

"YOU have too much money, too few friends, too much time on your hands, no interests in life."

Hearing this frank decision from a well-known specialist, Robin Marchant, a blackmailer named Alaine, decides to break away from his old life. He plans to go on a holiday, during which he will live the life of a tramp, sleeping in barns and existing on a few pennies daily. Before starting he comes to the rescue of his cousin, Walter Ferrers, a weak, easily-led character, who is in the clutches of a blackmailer named Dulham.

Robin Marchant.

Robin lends him the money and then starts on his holiday. One day, while resting by the roadside, he is observed by a beautiful girl. Taking him for a real tramp, she taunts him with his laziness and finally offers him work.

He accepts the offer and then finds that the girl, whose name is Alaine Farrel, lives at a fine old Elizabethan house. He sees her father, and after being engaged as chauffeur's assistant learns that a visitor, a Mr. Rawley, is expected.

To his amazement Rawley turns out to be none other than Dulham, the blackmailer! Luckily he had never seen Robin before, though the latter had seen him.

Rawley knows that the man whom everyone thinks is Alaine's father is Sir Geoffrey Farrel, an important named Collier. He taunts Collier with this, and threatens to expose him.

Finally he promises to expose him, but the price of such silence is to be Alaine's hand in marriage. The girl, of course, is quite unaware of this.

Meanwhile, Alaine, who has come with an elderly couple named Biggs, who live in a small cottage. Bessie, Alaine's maid, takes a liking to Smith. This annoys Rawley, who when he loves Bessie. There is a fight between the two men, which Alaine sees from a window overlooking the garage.

After knocking the chauffeur out Smith takes his place in Alaine's small car. Out of obstinacy the girl complains of a headache and goes to bed herself. She lands the car in a ditch, and as she is recovering consciousness is amazed to hear Smith referring to her in very endearing terms. He does not know she has heard him.

Rawley and his sister Nina come to visit Sir Geoffrey and the latter appears surprised to see Smith. She feels certain she has seen him before and suspects that he is Marchant.

Smith sees Farrel visit a lonely cottage where he meets a girl and a tall, strange-looking man.

Various incidents occur to rouse Smith's suspicions of Farrel. The latter tries to compel Alaine to marry Rawley, but she refuses.

RAWLEY TRIES AGAIN.

ALAINÉ went into the garden and sat among the roses, the flowers that she loved best. To-day she felt not the smallest interest in them. She was reviewing the past, and her bitter disappointment concerning her father.

She would admit frankly to herself now that which she had always tried to conceal. She had said to herself, "He is all that I hoped for," knowing full well that he was nothing of the kind.

It was the most bitter disappointment she had ever known. With clenched hands and a feeling of misery in her breast she faced the truth.

She had no love for her father. It was a horrible confession, but she must be perfectly honest with herself at last. She did not love him, for he had failed her in every way. She had been hungry for him and for his love.

But he had come and had treated her coldly, had stifled her love for him. He was cold, bitter, sullen, and seemed to pick his way carefully through the English language, as a smartly-shod girl might pick her way over a muddy street.

Step by step he laboured, avoiding this puddle and that and then—right into a particularly dirty puddle he fell, sending the filth flying in every direction.

Every now and then there would be a sudden explosion, an oath, which, mercifully, she did not understand, and yet at which she instinctively felt shocked.

That was her father! She thrust him out of her mind. Her thoughts turned to Rawley and his sister. No, she would not think of them. She passed on to Smith, the ragged creature with the smiling eyes, the man to whom she had given work.

"Of course," she said to herself, "I thoroughly understand the position. He is well educated, perhaps well-born. He is, or has been, a gentleman, but has done something disgraceful. His family have turned him off. Perhaps even he has been to prison."

She frowned at the thought. Somehow Smith did not suggest prison.

"At any rate, he has done something disgraceful, and his people have banished him. And yet—"

She smiled, and it was the first smile that had come to her lips for some time.

"Alaine!"

She started, waking from her thoughts and her dreams, and saw Rawley approaching her.

"I thought you had gone out with your sister."

"I did go out with her, but I came back to see you."

"There was no need."

"There is a great need. Alaine, your father is on my side." Rawley suddenly stretched out both hands to her. "Can't you be merciful? Can't you be generous? You know how I love you!"

"I gave my father my answer, and he has perhaps given it to you?"

"I'll not accept that answer."

(Translation, dramatic and all other rights secured.)

"You—you will have to." She rose to go into the house.

"Stop!" He laid his hand on her arm. "Alaine, you shall listen!"

"There is nothing you can say to me, Mr. Rawley, that I wish to hear. Kindly take your hand away."

"You can't act the fool with me," he cried. "Look here, you are going to listen to me—you shall! I am not a poor man. I—"

He paused—"I've got a sure source of income."

A glint came in his eyes for a moment as he realised his own smartness. Perhaps he was thinking of her father.

"Believe me," she said, "I do not wish to listen."

"You are going to hear what I have to say. I am not going to let you run away."

She was frightened, but because she was afraid she was certainly not going to let him see it.

She flung her head back and looked at him through scornful, contemptuous, half-closed eyes.

Smith might have recognised her pose at the moment, for she had regarded him several times in exactly the same manner.

"You will kindly stand aside and let me go," she commanded. "I do not wish to discuss this matter with you any further. I have given you my answer, Mr. Rawley, and it is final. If you were not my father's guest—"

"You can stop that talk! It won't go down with me!"

"The bully in the man was uppermost, and passion blinded him. He was making a fool of himself, but he could not recognise the fact at the moment."

"Alaine!" He had gripped both her slender arms and was holding them almost viciously.

"Mr. Rawley!"

"I love you, and I am not going to let you go! By Heaven!" He paused, for he was shaken and his wits were wandering.

How alluring she was! How lovely was that proud, contemptuous little face, even more enticing, perhaps, because of the pride and the

He picked up the discarded headlight.

"I shall not polish this rotten thing any more. It's Rawley's headlight, too." He surveyed it with infinite disgust.

"After all," he thought, and a smile dawned on his face, "I really have an interest in this excellent lamp. It was purchased with some of my money."

But he did not go on polishing the lamp. He folded his arms across his chest, and adopted Purvis' favourite attitude, leaning negligently against the sun-warmed wall.

SMITH "SEES RED."

"CLICK! A latch was lifted, but it was not the latch of the arched gate. The door that communicated with the kitchen yard opened and Betty came out."

She looked at him shyly, coyly. She knew, of course, that he was alone, for she had seen Purvis drive the master out an hour ago.

So here she was, dumb and red and confused, because her brain could not invent an excuse for her presence.

"Hello, Betty!" he said, cheerfully.

"Everyone's gone out, and I see 'ee from Miss Alaine's window."

"From her window? Can you see into the yard from her window?"

"Why, of course, 'ee can, great stupid!"

She came across the yard and pointed up.

"That be her window, one of 'em."

"Thanks very much."

"What for?"

"Nothing. I just like to understand the topography of the place."

"'Ee do use funny words, Smith. Baint 'ee got another name? Smith do sound so—"

She paused.

"I have another name, I will confess. It is Robinson—Robinson Smith. I call myself Smith for short."

"That be a terrible name, unless someone do call 'ee Robin."

"I have some recollection," said he, "that I have been called that, but it is a name I am not fond of. For many reasons I prefer Smith."

"You follow me, Betty?"

"Aye," she said, and looked up with big, innocent blue eyes at him.

"Where do 'ee want I to follow 'ee, Smith?"

"You mistake me," said Smith. "When I say 'Follow me home'—"

"hang! Now, look here, Betty, I want to talk to you."

"Yes, what do 'ee want to say?"

She came closer to him and smiled up at him confidently. If Smith at that moment had put his arm around her waist, probably Betty would not have raised the slightest objection.

Indeed, she was half expecting it, but Smith did nothing of the kind. He looked down at her.

"Betty, you are a very pretty and nice little girl, and I am going to try to do something for you."

She giggled coyly.

"What you want is a husband, a fine honest fellow, earning good wages."

"Oh! Oh!" she said, and drew a long breath.

But he was not earning good wages, she thought. No doubt he meant the future; he would earn good wages presently.

"I can see you," went on Smith, "in a nice little cottage of your own, with a devoted husband coming home to tea punctually and regularly."

"Oh!" said Betty. But why didn't he put his arms round her?

"Now I happen to know the very one. He is not handsome, but—"

"Good heavens, what's that?"

It was a sudden shrill scream, a scream so unexpected and unlooked for that a pistol shot would have been more explicable.

"Oh!" Betty gasped. "This Miss Alaine."

Her hair hurt herself.

But Smith had not stopped to listen. He had bounded across the yard and dragged up the latch of the arched door, praying that it might not be bolted on the far side.

It was not. The door swung open, and Smith in a moment found himself in the garden.

Betty, panting, was hard at his side.

What was she? What had happened? He saw through a kind of red mist struggling across a man and a woman, the man holding the woman, she fighting, thrusting frantic hands into his face, beating him back with all her feeble strength!

The quietest, most peaceful man may run amok, may see red, as it is called. Smith was not more peaceable than most, but it was nevertheless rare for him to lose his temper.

But on this occasion he did.

Another fine instalment to-morrow.

Mother! Break Child's Cold

Give "California Syrup of Figs" Child's Best Laxative

No matter what else you give your child to relieve a bad cold, sore throat or congestion, be sure to first open the little one's bowels with "California Syrup of Figs," to get rid of the poisons and waste which are causing the cold and congestion. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the constipation poison, sour bile and waste right out.

Even if you call your family doctor he will praise you for having given "California Syrup of Figs" as the laxative because it never fails, never gripes or overacts, and even sick children love its pleasant taste.

Ask for genuine "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Of all chemists, 1/3 and 2/6. Mother! You must say "California," or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

TRAGEDIES THAT CAN BE AVERTED.

How often one reads in the newspapers of inquests being held upon unfortunate individuals who have succumbed to blood-poisoning after a simple, everyday accident. Mr. A. Rawwell, the well-known House Furnisher, of 404, Marsh Street, Hackney, writing to the Proprietor of Burgess' Lion Ointment, encloses a news cutting about a poor woman who pricked her thumb with a silver fork, had the wound opened three times, then the thumb, and finally the arm removed, but all to no purpose. Mr. Rawwell himself had such a badly poisoned finger that his chemist advised him to consult a doctor at once. Fortunately he remembered that LION OINTMENT had once before saved one of his fingers, and he got some more, which made a healthy cure, without any lancing or cutting.

If only those who are unfortunate enough to acquire a poisoned wound were to apply Burgess' Lion Ointment there would be hundreds of amputations avoided yearly, apart from the saving of life. It has cured cases where mortification had already set in.

Est'd. 1847.

BURGESS' LION OINTMENT

is really a surgery by itself. It brings all morbid matter to the surface at once, healing from underneath. Thorns, splinters, wasp stings, all call for treatment by it with immediate success. Nature will always assert itself. It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of

BURGESS' LION OINTMENT

is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by Burgess' Lion Ointment, as it does not throw back humours into the system. Wherever there is disease such as Abscesses, Boils, Carbuncles, Whitlows, Erysipelas, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Kingworm, Eczema, or any skin disease or local inflammation apply the ointment.

It is sold by Chemists and Stores in the United Kingdom and Colonies at prices ranging from 1s. 3d., 3s., 6s., etc. Sole Proprietor:

HE WAS BALD

The merchant, Mr. John Hart Brittain, who was almost completely bald for several years, found a wonderfully efficacious hair-growing compound while engaged in dealing with the Cherokees—a tribe of Indians noted for their long and beautiful hair.

In a very short time the large spot, hitherto bald, was completely covered with luxuriant growth which Mr. Brittain retained, as shown in the photo above. Think of it, he was bald for years and had tried many hair lotions and treatments without benefit.

HIS HAIR GREW

The mixture, called Kotalko, is prepared according to the formula of the Cherokees, and contains potent ingredients from Three Kingdoms of Nature. Kotalko has proved itself a reliable hair-grower. It stops hair from falling out. It eliminates scurf. Either sex may use it. Legions of testimonials.

A BOX FOR YOU.

Any reader of this notice who would like a testing box of Kotalko may obtain one by sending sixpence in stamps or postal order to John Hart Brittain, Ltd., 2, Percy Street, (16 D.F.) London, W.1. After using Kotalko for a week, you will observe that your hair is beginning to grow—even if you have been bald for years—you may obtain a further supply at a moderate cost.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps, prepared shampoos and shampoo powders, contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp; makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

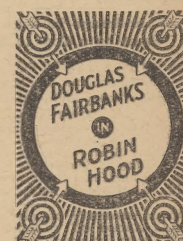

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup with a little tepid water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo from any chemist—it is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your chemist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations—look for the name Watkins on the package.—(Adv.)

ASCOT WEEK STORY IN DIVORCE COURT.

King's Proctor Intervenes Against Husband.

ADVENTURES OF 'NICKY.'

Tale of Her Hotel Visits and Night at Station.

A woman whose Christian name was given as Veronique, but who, it was stated, was known as Nicky, figured in a series of allegations regarding hotel visits in a case in the Divorce Court yesterday.

Sir Henry Duke yesterday heard the intervention of the King's Proctor to prevent being made absolute the decree nisi granted to Mr. Ivan Rupert Cory, of Ferry Road, Bray-on-Thames, for the dissolution of his marriage with Janet Lindsay Cory on the ground of her misconduct.

Mr. Patrick Murphy, K.C., for the King's Proctor, said that there was a general charge of misconduct with Captain F. W. Crawford, of Cox's Bank, Mentone. All the evidence at the hearing was by affidavit, and the King's Proctor now alleged that Mr. Cory had himself been guilty of misconduct, which he had not disclosed to the Court.

SEEN KISSING TOGETHER.

The King's Proctor discovered that from January 15, 1921, to March 2 a woman named Veronique Amor, commonly known as Nicky Amor, had taken a suite at Greenslade Hotel, Chesham-street, from early in March, was visited by petitioner, who remained at times till nine at night. They were seen kissing and both drinking heavily together.

On March 14 they went by motor to an hotel at Woking, where they were refused admission because of their condition.

Later both were found at the Compleat Angler Hotel, Marlow, where they took two rooms, but occupied one on one night and were seen having breakfast in bed.

Mr. Cory at this time was supposed to be living with his mother at Bray. He took the taxi-man up to the woman's bedroom at Marlow to have a drink with him and they afterwards all drove to Mrs. Cory, who declined to allow this woman to come into the house.

The police were summoned or came and she was driven back to the Compleat Angler, where they refused to have her in and the taxi-driver brought her back to Bray.

In spite of her protest that she should be admitted into the house the police conducted her to the police station at Maidenhead, where she spent the night of the 17th and 18th.

They were at Taplow together, continued counsel, for a week at Ascot time in the same year, occupying one bedroom at the Dumbell Hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Amor, and calling each other Nicky and Ivy. They spent practically the whole of this week in the bedroom. They had meals and drink there and never went out.

"IVAN, DARLING."

On November 13 Mr. Cory was apparently taken by his mother and a doctor to a nursing home from an address where he had been living with Amor.

The only plea by the petitioner was that he did not admit the King's Proctor's charges. Edward Russell, head waiter at Greenslade Hotel, said Mr. Cory stayed only one night at the hotel, in that part of the hotel.

He never saw acts of familiarity between her and Mr. Cory, but they were often not sober. A constable said that at Mrs. Cory's Veronique Amor threw her arms round the petitioner's neck and said, "Ivan, darling."

Witness took her to the police station, and when he told Mr. Cory that he had charged her with being drunk and disorderly Mr. Cory said, "I am sorry. She is a good sport, and I am very fond of her." The magistrate fined her £2 for being drunk and disorderly.

The hearing was adjourned.

THE KING'S PRIZE DOG.

Retriever's Win at Record London
Show—Popular Wolfhounds.

The King won a first prize with his fine retriever Worlerton Sapper at Cruft's Dog Show at Islington yesterday, when practically every breed of dog was represented.

The show constituted a British record for the number of dogs collected beneath one roof, there being no less than 5,766 entries. The strongest section was the Alsatian wolfhounds, but Sealyhams were a close second.

The number of small sporting dogs was a feature. Pekinese and Pomeranians seemed less popular.

All these aristocrats of the canine world accepted the ordeal of being publicly paraded in varying moods. Some were asleep; some sulked in their corner. Some were angry and excited; others very affectionately disposed towards their admirers.

GIFTS FOR 500 LITTLE GUESTS.

Each of the 500 poor children who, through the kindness of Messrs. B. and M. Abrahams, will attend the first performance of the successful revue, "Smile Awhile," at the Queen's Theatre, Poplar, to-morrow as the guests of Pip, Squeak and Wilfred, will receive a present of sweets and fruit as they leave the theatre.

The fact that the famous Daddy Mirror pets will attend the performance is arousing tremendous interest among the children.

FATAL SEA SMASH

Sleeping Man Killed and Two Hurt in Margate Collision.

One man was killed and two injured as the result of a collision near the Girdler Lightship, off Margate, between the steamer Goodwin and the mail-boat Maid of Orleans.

The Goodwin was being beached at Herne Bay with considerable damage amidships.

Thomas Coyle, of Glasgow, was killed, and two Glasgow firemen, William McLaughlin and John McBride, were taken to hospital in Gravesend seriously injured.

McBride told The Daily Mirror yesterday that he, Coyle, McLaughlin and another man were asleep in their room when the collision occurred.

"The side of our ship crumpled up," he said, "and next moment my bunk was matchwood. The Goodwin's side, as a matter of fact, was stove in from the bows to the bridge."

The Goodwin was beached on the Girdler Bank, where, it is thought, she may become a total wreck.

Three lifeboats from Margate went to the rescue, and the stewardesses and passengers were landed.

There were no casualties on board the Maid of Orleans, which dry-docked at Limehouse. Both her bows are damaged and the foremast was buckled.

Four men were rescued by the Bembridge lifeboat Langham from the vessel of Girdler, which broke adrift while being towed from Richborough to Southampton.

"BLUECOAT" TRAGEDY.

Council of School Vote Confidence in Headmaster and Staff.

Following the tragedy at Christ's Hospital (Bluecoat School) where Vivian Merton Tanner stabbed himself after a Rugby match, the Council of Almoners yesterday passed a resolution of "complete confidence in the headmaster and his staff."

They did so, "well knowing that no great school can be more free from cruelty than Christ's Hospital, or less liable to 'ragging,'"

Hearfelt sympathy was expressed to the bereaved parents.

If the Board of Education desires a further inquiry the council will give every facility for it.

£1,086,444 WILL.

Sir W. P. Hartley's Promises to Charities—Graded Cessation.

Practically a controlling voice in any decisions to be made under the powers of his will were given to his widow by Sir William Pickles Hartley, head of the well-known firm of jam manufacturers, who left £1,086,444.

He urges his executors to honour all promises made by him in writing for charitable purposes, but that he gradually subordinated lessening from year to year, shall be paid to certain organisations, so that they will not feel the immediate deprivation of his contribution.

He left £25,000 to employees, but not free of legal duty, and with each year to realise the liability of us all to contribute according to our means to the national revenue.

GORGEOUS PAGEANT OF ARTS BALL.

Tut-anekh Amen and Polar Modes at Albert Hall.

MARKS SNOWSTORM.

Marks fell again last night—this time in large numbers at the Albert Hall, where for economical reasons three tons of paper money were used as snow falling on the 4,000 odd revellers dancing amid the Antarctic settings decreed for the Chelsea Arts Club Annual Ball.

The lights in the roof—of two million candle-power—were suspended icebergs, and the orches- tra performed from the depths of a snowdrift.

Although there were numerous penguins, polar bears, esquimaux and other Antarctic denizens many found Lord Carnarvon's Egyptian discovery too good a subject to leave out of fancy-dress schemes.

Women seemed to take the theme seriously, and there were many gorgeously designed costumes of the Pharaonic period. Their attendant menfolk, however, seemed to think King "Tut Tut" an excellent subject for burlesque.

For the benefit of those unable to be present at the opening of the inner tombs at Luxor a party of students proposed the ceremony in the centre of the hall, by the central iceberg.

A bound captive explorer, whose identity was "camouflaged" in the spelling, El-lor-kah-nah-nah, was carried by King Tut-anekh Amen's satellite, the Duke of Argyll.

During the evening and early morning the students of the various art schools appeared on the floor in picture-pose tableaux.

"POLLY" COSTUMES.

The Central School of Art presented Freya, "The Norse Goddess of Love," escorted by her waiting maids.

The Royal College of Art chose Sol, the Sun Maid, whose picturesque escort deserted her when a shower of balloons descended from the roof.

The Royal Academy School chose an attack on a huge Penguin's egg by "polar bears" as their contribution to the entertainment. The egg was broken and released twenty small "penguins," who turned on and killed the "bear."

"The Heart of an Iceberg," which the Chelsea Polytechnic students presented, was represented by icy mammoths, who paraded the dance floor to the accompaniment of an organ voluntary.

"The North Wind," with jagged cloud effects, was another distinctive feature.

Among the original costumes were a party dressed as choirboys, while an interesting combination was a party of Eskimos.

Polly, with Red Indians and pirates, were other favourite subjects for fancy dress parties dressed alike.

"THAT'S" LOST WILL.

Judge Finds in Favour of Miss Clarice Mayne in Probate Action.

The lost will of Mr. J. W. Tate, the variety artist, professionally known as "That," was the subject of an action yesterday in the Probate Court.

Mr. T. Bucknill said that the plaintiff was Miss Clarice Mayne (Mr. Tate's widow), and the defendant was his daughter by a previous marriage. The action was to prove the contents of a lost will made in March, 1912, under which Mr. Tate left all his property to Miss Mayne.

Judge said that Mr. Tate intended to try and find it, but probably did not succeed. He accordingly pronounced for the will.

LATE LORD NORTHCLIFFE

Letter from Secretaries of Three Benevolent Funds Regarding Will.

We have received the following letter:—
To the Editor, Sir,—The Newspaper Press Fund, the News-vendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution, and the Prisoners' Penny Almshouse and Orphan Asylum Corporation, in all of which the late Lord Northcliffe took a personal interest, are deeply grateful for the generous disposition which he has made on their behalf in his will.

But they desire to point out that the will provides for the distribution of the residuary trust after the expiration of many lives, and that none of the three funds can expect to benefit by a single penny for at least half a century.

The necessity for continued support of our work, and especially for our annual appeals, is constantly being remembered.

Yours faithfully, Sidney G. Smeed, secretary, Newspaper Press Fund; Wilkie Jones, secretary, News-vendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution; Joseph Mortimer, secretary, Printers' Almshouse and Orphan Asylum Corporation.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

By Our City Editor.

Markets were good in tone again to-day, although at close prices were below best. War Loan was finally easier 100 1/2.

Rome Ralls continued strong on the dividend, with Metropolitan 2 up 23, and Overseas 1 up 15. Southern deferred 364 and Underground Income 94, all favoured. Today's dividends are: Brighton 61 per cent. on "A" stock, dividend 41, with 3 per cent. on contingent rights; 100 for the first time in history—Chatham 3 per cent. on ordinary shares, a maximum of 100—South Eastern 5 per cent. on "A" stock, against 23 per cent.

Mex. Eagle rose 2 1/2 to 15 1/2; other Oils steady. Rubbers generally harder. Mines were better.

253 Eggs Per Bird in Year

7 Exchequer Leghorns laid 1,771 eggs on Karswood Poultry Meal and Karswood Poultry Spice (containing ground insects).

The Exchequer Leghorn.

Are you getting five eggs a week from every pullet? If not, the birds are not working full time. Start them forthwith on Karswood Poultry Meal and Karswood Poultry Spice (containing ground insects), and you will get the most eggs for the least money. Read letter below from Mr. Maish.

253 Eggs per Bird in Year.

15, Dugdale St., Nuneaton.

I am a user of your renowned Karswood Poultry Meal and Karswood Poultry Spice (containing ground insects), because I have found out from personal experience that they cannot be beaten at any price. I have tried many other foods, but I'm not trying them again—it's Karswood for me always.

I had an exceedingly good year last year for egg production, and the hatches all through were splendid. All chicks are reared on your Karswood Chick Rearing Meal, they like it, and grow at an alarming rate. I keep one breed only—Exchequer Leghorns—and with the help of Karswood foods they are making some very good records. Last year, from November 15, 1921, to November 14, 1922, a pen of 7 Exchequer Leghorns laid 1,771 eggs, or an average of 253 eggs per bird for 12 months, whilst at present I have a flock of 14 May-hatched Exchequer Leghorn pullets which have laid 345 eggs for the month of December last, or an average of nearly 25 per bird for one month, and they are still going well.

I use Karswood Poultry Spice (containing ground insects) every day, and shall continue to do so, for I find it keeps the birds in excellent laying condition, tight in feather, red in comb and a real picture to look at, and I am sure it has actually helped the fertility of the eggs.

27th Jan., 1923. W. B. MAISH.
YOU CAN DO JUST AS WELL by using Karswood Poultry Spice packets, 24d., 7d., 1s. 3d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s. 6d., 24s. 6d., which works out at one-tenth of a farthing per bird per day in use. ## THE QUEEN'S VISIT LAST NIGHT TO CHESTERFIELD HOUSE

GLIDING RECORDS FROM DESERT AERODROME

LAST NIGHT'S CHELSEA ARTS BALL—BRILLIANT AND ROMANTIC PAGEANT.

Left: Miss Ella Hooper as "The Fantastic West" and Mr. Bevan Lorimer as "The Pearl of Persia."
Right: Captain Hussey, of the Shackleton expedition, in Antarctic attire.

English weather even has never displaced the variety of climate portrayed at last night's brilliant Chelsea Arts Ball. One passed shivery icebergs only to meet inhabitants of ancient Egypt in costumes inspired by the finds in the Valley of the Kings.—(Daily Mirror photographs.)
